Status of Suicide in Tennessee is an annual report to provide state legislators, mental health professionals, and the general public with information on the problem of suicide in Tennessee and what is being done to prevent it. Each year's edition includes a detailed report on suicide trends within the state, both overall and for various subgroups. Suicide trends over the past several years are discussed, broken down by age, race, gender, and geography. This webpage has links to the reports for 2012- 2015.
