

WASHINGTON: New Initiative Aims to Prevent Youth Suicide

December 06, 2019

News Type: Weekly Spark, Weekly Spark News

State: Washington

On the Pulse [1]

Seattle Children's Hospital is implementing a Zero Suicide initiative to prevent youth suicide. Using a five-question tool, the hospital is screening patients 10 and older for suicide risk in its emergency department and inpatient settings. Those who screen positive are connected with mental health support. "Early detection of suicidal thoughts is critical to preventing youth suicide," said Molly Adrian, a psychologist and co-leader of the initiative. "So, we implemented the pathway to ensure our patients are asked about their risk and that we follow up accordingly." Since the initiative launched in March, the hospital has screened more than 5,000 patients presenting for non-psychiatric reasons. The initiative has also provided extra training to nurses and other providers in how to talk with children about suicide.

Spark Extra! Check out the Zero Suicide Toolkit [2] to learn how to identify [3] patients with suicide risk.

Links within this resource

[1] <https://pulse.seattlechildrens.org/new-initiative-aims-to-prevent-youth-suicide/>

[2] <http://zerosuicide.sprc.org/toolkit>

[3] <http://zerosuicide.sprc.org/toolkit/identify>

Printed on 09/18/2020 from <https://www.sprc.org/news/washington-new-initiative-aims-prevent-youth-suicide>

The Suicide Prevention Resource Center at EDC is supported by a grant from the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services (HHS), Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration (SAMHSA), Center for Mental Health Services (CMHS), under Grant No. 5U79SM062297.

The views, opinions, and content expressed in this product do not necessarily reflect the views, opinions, or policies of CMHS, SAMHSA, or HHS.

Copyright © 2002-2019 by Education Development Center, Inc. All Rights Reserved.

